LOCATION HISTORY

1932. Juan-les-Pins has become a must-see destination. In the suite of musician Cole Porter, the Americans Gerald and Sara Murphy launched the summer season 10 years earlier. Scott Fitzgerald and John Dos Passos immortalised this golden age inhabited by giants such as Pablo Picasso, Rudolph Valentino and Ernest Hemingway. That year, a hotel was built. Built by the modernist architect George Dikanski above the Gould pine forest and the beaches, it evokes a of an ocean liner moored in carefree times. Ninety years later, the building is revived in its splendour and takes its name and inspiration from the year of its birth.
